The political excitement that permeater every nook of the United States is responsible for the speiling of the plans of the Pittsburg ladies who had arranged for a lecture by Mrs. Edmund Russell last night. The lady was to have talked about Delsarreism in the Pittsburg Club Theater, under the auspices of a circle of King's Daughters, but estheticism cannot stand against brass bands and torchlight-bearing marchers, full of policical enthusiasm, and the lecture was accordingly postponed. It is to be given Monday afternoon, the 14th inst., at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Magee, admission being by invitation. The title of the lecture is "The Art of Expression." Mrs. Russell will be the guest of Mrs. Center decided. ion." Mrs. Russell will be the guest of Mrs. Coater during her short stay in Pitts-

Charity is a beautiful thing in itself, but ft is never more so than when associated with the dainty prettiness of life. This was the sentiment expressed by more than one of the guests at the musicale at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Jarvis Adams, for the benefit of the Homeopathic Hospital, Friday night. Music of the most refined character was heard there, and from the moment "Intermezzo" broke through the stillness of the great hall to that when the pathetic farewell "Good-night" was sung by trained voices the listeners felt that they were in an atmosphere of art that listed their souls to a higher plane, and attuned them to human kindness. In assisting a good cause there is no reason why some other pleasure should not be enjoyed by the donors. Entertainments in which refinement and culture are the most noticeable characteristics always command more attention, and lead to more generosity than those which are obviously of a catchpenny nature, Pittsborgers are proverbially liberal, but they like to see charities conducted with a due regard to art and culture when it is possible. A more delightful entertainment an that at Grand View Friday night was ver given for sweet charity's sake or any-

The lovely mansion of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Fry, on a bill overlooking the town of Rochester, Pa., was a fitting place for a wedding, and was so pronounced by the guests who witnessed the marriage of the aughter of the house, Miss Clara Belle Fry, to Mr. Henry Judson Sage, of Boston, last Tuesday. It was toe first wedding that had ever taken place in the home, and the occasion was therefore a notable one. Palms and chrysanthemums were used tastefully and liberally to enhance the natural beau ties of the place and the result was simply bewildering. The house was full of guests, and when the young couple left on their home at Buffalo, a shower of congratuiations, in which was the true ring of sincerity, was sent after them from a hundred die, Mrs. Mary Dunlap, Mrs. M. H. Gray, Mrs. D. The chrysanthemum is enjoying an unprecedented run of popularity. Chrysanthemum tens have been the lad, and now chrysanthemum luncheons are the latest thing in New York and Boston. Pittsburg is always quick to take up any pretty idea, and we may expect to hear of a good many chrysanthemum luncheons in this city dur-ing the winter. We have the chrysanthemums, and the society and the material for the functions, so why not?

The entry into society of a young girl is always an interesting event, to the debutante as well as to her riends. The party given by Dr. and Mrs. Andrew Easton, at their residence, Montgomery avenue, Allegheny, Friday eventug, to bring out their daughter, Miss Billian, was one of the most enjoyable social occasions of the season. The inir young girl, with the flush of pleasure on her cheek, was herself a pleasing object to look upon, and, surrounded as sue was, by her irrends, all eager to make her first formal party a memorable one, it is no wonder that she was the picture of maidenly happiness. Miss Lillian Easton is an accomprished young lady, and will be an acquisition to the social circles of the two cities.

Invitations are out for a party at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Stanton, West Stanton avenue, East End.

The wedding of Miss Mary Beesley, for some time the soprano of the Third Presbyterian Church, which took place at Jacksonville, Ill., last week, was a surprise to her Pittsburg triends. The groom is Mr. Alexander F. Adams, a gentleman of a good Scotch iamily, and it is believed he will prove entirely worthy of his talented and charming bride. The couple will reside on Snady avenue, this city.

on Halloween. It was a very successful affair, both in a financial and social sense. Before the social scatures began an entertainment of an excellent character was given. Among other things, Miss Nellie Menges, the elecutionist, pave two selections. Prof. A. H. List took part, and George E. Kepple made an address. A reception is to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Taylor, of Sewickley, Thursday atternoon, from 3 to 5 o'clock.

An important but quiet home wedding took place Thursday at the residence of McDonald, Pa., last Tuesday evening, at 7 o'clock, when Miss Sarah Smith became the Mrs. Benjamin Page, Jr., Lincoln avenue, was performed at the bride's nome. The Rev. W. D. Irous officiated. The bride wore a cress of light gray landown trimmed with white silk and lace, and carried white roses, A host of friends filled the handsomely decorated rooms, and after an elegant supper the happy couple left on an Eastern tour. PITTSBURG DAY

In Aid of the Southside Hospital Fair.

The generous ladies who have devoted themselves with vigorous energy to assume the financial success of this beau iful charity, the Southside Hospital Fair, certainly deserve the liberal encouragement of one and all, financially and otherwise.

The Chairwoman o Pittsburg Day is Mrs. M. F. Hutchins, who is ably assisted by Mrs. K. Solomon, Chairwoman o the Tree of Life con-regation, and her young and beautiful aids, Miss Bianca DeRoy and Miss Eva Jackson, and Mrs. Charles Ruben, of the Eighth Street Temple, aided by the charming Mrs. M. Leilman and Mrs. Rosenbaum.

These two ladies, who have devoted themselves entirely to the service of the fair, will serve an elegant and chaborate dinner and supper on Pittsburg Day, which will be offered from the hands of a bevy of beautiful maidens, whose presence ought to rive an added zest to the delicate viands. They include Miss Lizzie Lehman, Miss Burtie Lehman, Miss Minnie Joseph, Miss Tennie Burgauer, Miss Lellie Zugschmit, Miss Ruby Eiseman, Miss Bella Flocasheim, Miss Ruby Eiseman, Miss Bella Flocasheim, Miss Nettie Klee.

The Hospital is badly in need of immediate. In Aid of the Southside Hospital Fair. The Hospital is badly in need of immediate and substantial aid, and these ladies should receive every encouragement in their noble work.

FASHION NOTES.

Specially Written for The Dispatch.

Specially Written for The Dispatch.

While there were not as many patterns shown at last week's opening as at those earlier in the season, yet they had one decided advantage; the styles shown now are the styles for the season. It's not likely that great channes will take place before the early spring styles show themselves. It's larae hats, soft velvet crowns, La France roses, ostrich tips in light shades, soft French felt plateaus, heavy laces, and all that is necessary to put these together so as to create a becoming and stylish hat is nothing but—a good milliner. A pretty hat by Aitken is a brewn Plateau, faced smoothly as a mirror with mousse velvet, caught up so as to form a very becoming shape. Four large velvet loops stand up midway in front, with a large bunch of velvet violets in the middle, a large bunch of finest Prince of Wales brown tips are high up in the back, while little tips and a little bunch of violets are under the crown in the back. A beauty by Francois is a large Tam O'Shanter crown of black velvet, with a shirred rim of heavy black silk lace, drooping down, while four large, light blue tips stand straight up in the front, a little toward the side. A strikingly beautiful hat! A simple toque is made or white felt, with a twist of black velvet and a twist of platd felt braids to form the brim, while a large bow of the same braid, with loops of felt ribbon faced with velvet caught by a buckle, stands high up on the side. Dozens more of just such pretty things were shown, and there is really not a face, no matter how beautiful, that cannot be framed or crowned by lovely headgear. They were busy as bees and order after order was taken, and while one pleased customer tells another of the style, the superb quality of material used and the indeed more than reasonable proces, the millinery business of Rosenbaum & Co., Market street, keeps on growing and remains at the head of them all.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL PLAN.

The Principals Insist on a Modification as to Geography, Otherwise They Are Satisfied -The Scheme Will Probably Be Adopt ed-Odds and Ends.

Since the publication of the last examin tion plan for admittance to High School the principals and assistant principals, the ones most directly interested, have been in deep meditation and the result was a call for a meeting at the Franklin School yester-

Their objection was the study of geography which according to the new plan is transferred for examination from the month of December to June, thus practically eliminating the preliminary examination en-tirely. This objection was fixed up by passtirely. This objection was fixed up by passing a resolution requesting the Secretary of the Central Board of Education to urge upon that body, that the pupils' knowledge of the subject of geography be certified to this year by the principals, so as to have no examination at all in this branch this year. After this year, having plenty of time to get accustomed to the change, the principals will not object to the examination. With this modification the High school plan, which will be recommended by the Revision Committee to the Central Board of Education for adoption next Tuesday evening, received the indorsement of the principals and assistant principals of the city, and with such an approbation the plan has every likelihood of being adopted. Noxt Tuesday being election night there will be no difficulty in obtaining a quorum of Central Board members as they will all be in town to hear the "returns."

The Alumna Will Celebrate. Yesterday all day long the executive com was busy directing invitations to the over 500 graduates of this popular institution to come and celebrate their fifth annual banquet at High School Hall, the evening of December 2. The card of invitation reads from 8 to 2 and as the event occurs on a Friday evening, with an "off" day on Saturday, the school ma'ams will make merry at their lete of the year. The Royal Italian Orchestra will furnish the music and an East End caterer will attend to the supper. Previous to the dancing a fine programme is being prepared for the entertainment of the guests. The Amphion Quartet and Henry Girding are down for musical selections. was busy directing invitations to the over 500

Marion Harland endorses and uses Cleveland's Baking Powder.

February 5, 1892.

After long and careful trial of others, I prefer Cleveland's Baking Powder for several reasons. . .

Cleveland's is a pure cream of tartar and soda mixture, not containing alum or ammonia or any other substance deleterious to the human stomach.

Cakes, muffins, biscuits, &c., in which Cleveland's Baking Powder is used, keep better. . .

A like quantity of Cleveland's Baking Powder goes further and does better work than any other of which I have knowledge. It is therefore cheaper.

LIGHTNING IN PITTSBURG.

The Iron Smoke Stacks, Steel Bridges Metallie Bound Sheds, Electric Wires and Street Car Rails Diffuse the Most Powerful Discharges-The Heart of the

[WRITTEN FOR THE DISPATCH.! The chances are estimated at something like a million to one against an individual being struck by lightning, yet the fear of it seems rather to be increasing rather than diminishing. The electrical storms in Pittsburg last summer carried terror to many a heart, and more people than one would suppose welcome the coming winter princi-pally because its skies will be free from the vivid streaks.

Electricians and scientific men generally, declare that every large city in the United States is, at least in its heart, perfectly protected against a stroke of lightning from the clouds. This ought to be re-assuring. Yet at times the facts seem to be as much against as with these authorities, and there is so much that they do not know, that a reasoning novice may be pardoned for doubting the universal application of their theories. Any-one who has ever witnessed the appailing force of a direct stroke of lightning may be pardoned for doubt as to any human agency being able to divert it, or to diffuse it harm-lessly. On the street, under supposed conductive shelter, or in an ordinary building, the terrors of an active electric storm are vivid enough; but in a large telegraph effice they are appalling to one of nervous tempera-ment. An instance in point occurred in this ity recently.

A Scene in a Telegraph Office. During an especially violent storm of thunder and lightning, as chronicled in the local papers at the time, the Western Union Telegraph office, at Fifth avenue and Wood street, was a scene of unspeakable terror. The unusual severity and frequency of the lightning had been noted throughout the evening, though without exciting more than evening, though without exciting more than the usual amount of comment. Suddenly there came a flash of the most intense vividness. It was as disturbing to the humors of the eyes as the unveiling of a direct and powerful electric light in close proximity in the thickest darkness. Without a quiver every electric light in the big office was extinguished. Instantly there was a tremendous crash. It was that of the synchronous thunder, but not a man in the office could realize it. An awful explosion it was, too—heard for miles around.

"I thought it was the crack of doom, sure," said one operator in describing the scene. "It seemed as though the office had been struck, and I thought I could feel the top floor of the lofty building failing outward into the streets."

In perhaps half a minute the electric lights resumed their accustomed radiance, and the wonted tranquility of the operating force was partially restored. But every face in that office had been blanched, and more than three-fourths of the men had arisen from their chairs as though to prepare for the worst.

The Man at the Switch Board. But it is the wire chief who has to face the ketry rattle roll across the switchboard n a few inches of his face. Only the steadiest nerve can resist the impulse to "jump" when an unusually loud report or bright flash occurs. To watch the antics of a nervous wire chief is as mirth-provoking as to contemplate the noddings and recoveries of a sleepy deacon in church on a warm Sunday. It is 10 to 1, too, that the man who laughs the hardest will jump the highest when he innocently approaches the switch board and encounters a specimen of the phenomena.

which board and encounters a specimen of the phenomena.*

Mr. Tom Hughes, of the Postal Telegraph Company, said the other day: "This city is almost perfectly protected against danger from lightning. You never hear of lightning striking anywhere near the heart of the city although strokes in isolated sections of the surrounding townships are of frequent occurrence. Our iron bridges, our countless smoke-stacks, our great metallic-bound sheds, our electric wires overhead, our steel rails on the surface, and our underlying ore deposits—all wires overhead, our steel rails on the surface, and our underlying ore deposits—all these, or a part of them, are sufficient to divert or diffuse the most powerful stroke of lightning I have ever seen. I feel a sense of absolute safety in Pittsburg, and nowhere is this sense so acute with me as in a telegraph office. Each wire is gauged to carry only so much current. If it crosses with an electric light or motor wire, the increase of current will melt it and break the circuit, thus disconnecting the office. The same effort would result from a heavy stroke of lightning."
